

Social Accountability & Professionalism-

December 16, 2015

Our medical students attended a Social Accountability & Professionalism training with California Northstate University's legal counsel, Paul Wagstaffe. Mr. Wagstaffe reinforced the idea of always being conscious of professional demeanor, not just towards colleagues, or future patients, but also in the community as a whole and on social media. He accentuated the importance of an individual's reputation in a professional environment as they are a representation of a whole university and future physicians.
